

Again reiterating that there was good reason for removing the "Man Out Of Time" scene from Marvel's The Avengers, Chris Evans recently told Collider at the Toronto Film Festival that those aspects of Steve Rogers' story will be explored in Captain America: The Winter Soldier and teased how the material cut from the superhero ensemble will play a big role in his next solo instalment. The site even asked him about whether he knows what direction a possible third movie will take, but he unfortunately only replied with, "Maybe". "The most I am looking forward to is exploring a little bit of Steve's...they had all those deleted scenes with The Avengers because a lot of those scenes are for Captain 2, you know what I mean? It was good stuff, but it all felt like that was his story. It is a different movie. With The Avengers there was

Read more: <http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/JoshWildingNewsAndReviews/news/?a=67425>