

In an interview with MTV Splash Page, Chris Zylka has revealed that like his co-star Andrew Garfield, he too is a long-time fan of Spider-Man and turned back to the comic book when he won the role of Flash Thompson in The Amazing Spider-Man. "I definitely read the comic books and got as familiar with the comic books as possible. I was always a fan of Spider-Man and most superheroes. There aren't a whole lot of little boys out there that aren't." As for the Flash we'll see in the reboot, it sounds as if we can expect a far more fleshed out version than the minor role the character played in Sam Raimi's take on the franchise. "I just really tried to delve into 'why'. Why does Flash do this? And to try to show that to the audience a little bit more than just beating up on Peter or

Read more: <http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/JoshWildingNewsAndReviews/news/?a=59054>