

"In terms of box office, I don't feel any pressure," Bale told 24 Frames. "I never saw Batman and Bruce Wayne as a big tent pole. It was just another character I love playing. But I do feel a creative pressure. It would be wrong if I didn't feel that." When Oldman was asked how he was handling potential pressure surrounding the final Batman chapter, he says: "It's more pressure on Chris [Nolan] than on me. If they feel disappointed with Gordon, that's one thing. If they feel disappointed with the movie, that's another." "Chris is too classy to make a movie just for the sake of doing a third one," he said, adding, "It's a terrific story, and it's going to be epic. fans will have a chance to decide for themselves when new footage is shown at some Imax screenings of "Mission Impossible: Ghost Protocol" Opening on July 20, 2012, The

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/MarvelFreshman/news/?a=50628&t=Christian_Bale_And_Gary_Oldman_Discuss_Possible_Pressure_Surrounding_TDKR