

"I'm sure George Washington could never have imagined," Christian Bale told the New York Daily News of filming The Dark Knight Rises on the steps of the Federal Hall in Manhattan near where George Washington was inaugurated as the first President of the United States. "And I apologize to him, because it probably should have never happened." If you were hoping that the actor would jump on board another franchise (superhero or otherwise) it looks like you may be in for disappointment. "We need different rhythms in our life, don't we, and to me it would be the wrong rhythm to jump into a franchise at this point. For now, no, I'd be looking for new experiences." "I wasn't a 12-year-old that gave a damn about comics," he added when talk returned to Batman. "I had never been someone into comic books, it just didn't interest me. It wasn't my thing." In fact,

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/JoshWildingNewsAndReviews/news/?a=53315&t=Christian_Bale_Looks_Back_On_Discovering_The_Caped_Crusader_Through_Batman_Year_One