

During a press junket for his upcoming film "Flower's of War", Christian Bale, the actor portraying Bruce Wayne & Batman, ultimately shared his thoughts on ending the franchise, working with Nolan, and where his character is headed in the final film. "I do not know how much I can say ... In general Chris Nolan gets upset if the actors talk too much, he likes to give himself the information ..." "It's like saying goodbye to an old friend. When you have the opportunity to be a character so many times, you develop another relationship with him, a more profound one." "How long will you let the pain and loss define your life? Walking around chasing bad guys is very heroic and attracts attention, but at the end it all accounts for, as a means to deal with the pain of a huge loss." "We agreed that Bruce Wayne is absolutely sincere
