

[THIS INTERVIEW WAS CONDUCTED PRIOR TO THE AURORA SHOOTING] Nolan on starting the franchise all the way back in 2003 and if he knew where the franchise was going to go from the start. NOLAN: I certainly wasn't that forward thinking. I really, only dared think about what Batman Begins was going to be just because I'm a bit superstitious and I didn't want to make any assumptions about what people would think of that film, whether people would want to see my take on the character on a longer term. So, with each of the three films, we really just tried to tell everything we had to say about that character in that film as if it was the one chance we had to deal with the characters. How does he feel to be at the end of that journey which started back in 2003. Exhausted? Relieved? NOLAN: Certainly

Read more: <http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/GraphicCity/news/?a=64299>