

Along with the reveal of one of their Marvel One-Shots featuring S.H.I.E.L.D Agent Phil Coulson,' the leading star Clark Gregg, and the Co-producer Brad Winderbaum, recently discussed with Marvel.com the development process. And while Gregg also teases his role in the Joss Whedon's superhero ensemble Avengers, what's also discussed is how the One-Shots tie into the movies. "I got a call from a rising young executive over at Marvel named Kevin Feige to talk about the Avengers," jokes Gregg. "In that conversation he said they had this crazy idea. They want to do some shorts about a couple of different days in the life of Agent Coulson. Some [would be] connective tissue between the movies and others are behind-the-scenes in the day of a S.H.I.E.L.D. agent, and in my mind [Agent Coulson is] the S.H.I.E.L.D. agent. And I said that sounds amazing! Usually when I'm asked to do a short it's somebody's

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/MarvelFreshman/news/?a=43480&t=Co-Producer_Agent_Coulson_Actor_Clark_Gregg_Reveal_iMarvel_One-Shotsi_Details