

Back in May in DC's Free Comic Book Day issue, we were greeted with some promotional images of a brand new Green lantern. The character sported what appeared to be some Arabic tattoos on his arm, and later on rumors surfaced that his name was 'Baz'. There was a lot of speculation among fans as to which Country this new hero would be hailing from, and now we can confirm that he is American!. Confirmation comes from an article detailing DC Chief Creative Officer Geoff Johns upcoming visit to the Arab American National Museum in Detroit to mark the character's debut. The story in the Detroit Free Press (via Newsarama) describes the hero the "first Arab-American Green Lantern," and also marks the first DC confirmation of the character's name — 'Baz'. So there you have it, Baz will now be the fifth American to wear the mantle of Green Lantern. Baz is

Read more: <http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/roshachsrants/news/?a=66250>