

From comics to games and movies, Batman's alternate costumes are always awesome to look at and sometimes complain about. Well, it seems we'll have one more opportunity to do both as DC released a new costume for their Rebirth version of Batman Beyond. In the current Rebirth storyline Terry McGuinnis from the Batman Beyond TV series is back as the future version of the Dark Knight and is now showcasing a new costume for the Hero. Check out the new look below: As you can see, the new costume is very similar to the old one, but it displays a little more "dramatized" red lines all around. The cape also seems to be different as it looks like it is now attached to the Hero's arms. The revelation of the new costume happens in issue #4. The costume, build out of specifications found in the computer of (supposedly late) Bruce Wayne comes in an appropriate time as Terry's last one was damaged and rendered useless in

Read more: <https://www.comicbookmovie.com/comics/comics-check-out-the-new-costume-dc-cooked-up-for-batman-beyond-a148514>