

In the latest "Next Big Thing" press conference, All-New X-Men writer Brian Michael Bendis has been quizzed on the premise of the series. While a lot of what he said was already covered in the interview we posted earlier today (find it HERE if you missed it), Bendis did drop some intriguing new details, particularly about Cyclops. Apparently, he will be "out there on a journey of redemption that seems impossible" as "a very public and very popular face of a mutant revolution." Apparently, the original five will become part of the Jean Grey School and their arrival in the presence will have ramifications as widespread as in Guardians of the Galaxy. Click on the link at the bottom of the page to read more of Bendis' comments.

Read more: <http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/JoshWildingNewsAndReviews/news/?a=69191>