

Adding and revising the "New 52 FAQ" for comic book retailers, DC have added only a few brief snippets of information, with the most shocking being related to the Batman and Robin dynamic. You see, the DCnU age of superheroes is only about 5 years old (Justice League #1 will actually flashback to that time exploring the first meetings of the iconic heroes) so just how could Dick Grayson, Jason Todd, Tim Drake and Damian Wayne have all been Robin during that short period? If super-heroes have only existed for five years, how has Batman gone through so many Robins? Robin is an intern program -and a very intensive one at that. Wait, what?! An intern program? Well, this sounds like it'll be "Batman Inc" related. If that's the case, is Tim still Bruce's adopted son? Does he still have a father/son relationship with Dick? And did Jason still die at the hands of

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/joshw24/news/?a=43956&t=COMICS_DC_Reveal_Controversial_New_Dynamic_Between_Batman_And_His_Robins