

Going into its second year, is 'The New 52' still new? "It's still New! I think the 'New X-Men' have been 'New' for a very long time, so don't knock my New off so soon!" DiDio joked. Reflecting on the past year as whole DiDio went on to say, "From my standpoint it's been an interesting year; we started last year and as we built getting into the New 52 there was a lot of trepidation among the retailers, the fans, everybody, even our own staff. But we believed in what we were doing and we went out there and basically hand sold it to everybody," DiDio said. "We saw people's minds change and join us and come along with us. Now a year later the numbers are holding strong for us." Looking at the inclusion of his Wildstorm characters, Jim Lee surprisingly revealed that he actually had very little input into
