

Talking to IGN Comics, Geoff Johns has let slip plenty of interesting new details about what's next for Justice League once the current arc (set five years in the past showing how the team came together) wraps up. There's plenty more to be found over at the site, so be sure to click on the link below to read the interview in its entirety. On What Else We Should Expect In The Rest Of The First Arc: You should probably expect the unexpected. There are some relationships, especially in issue #2, that will be familiar, but then there are other ones that are going to be completely different from what they used to be. And even moving forward, past this arc, there's a bunch of different relationships on the team that won't be... well, you just have to expect the unexpected with what we're doing. We're kind of pushing these guys to new

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/joshw24/news/?a=46763&t=COMICS_Geoff_Johns_Teases_The_Future_Of_The_Justice_League_And_More