

Today, Marvel Comics announced plans for a new solo Luke Cage ongoing comic book series from David Walker, who's currently writing the well-received Power Man & Iron Fist series. He'll be joined by Nelson Blake II, who'll handle art duties. In a new interview with CBR, Walker announced that his run on Power Man & Iron Fist is coming to a close in May but he'll still be writing at least one-half of the duo in the new Cage solo book. On the new series, Walker stated, "With this book I'm trying to build off the shoulders of everything that has come before. Just as he was in the "Power Man & Iron Fist" run, he's a bit wiser. He's still very street-smart, but he's also a father, a husband, and he's been through a lot more. I'm writing him in a much more contemplative way. He's the sort of person who'd like to figure out how to get out of a

Read more: https://www.comicbookmovie.com/comics/marvel\_comics/comics-in-the-wake-of-t-he-netflix-shows-success-marvel-a148735