

Anyone who has been reading DC's Batman And Robin will know that the comic has been featuring the current and previous incarnations of Robin quite frequently. But we may well be on the way to seeing a spin off Bat-book with those characters, minus The Caped Crusader, and written by the awesome Jeff Lemire.. I understand, from a well placed source, that the current tittle tattle around the Batbooks is that Jeff Lemire will write a new series entitled The Robins, starring Damien, Jason, Tim and Dick. In Batman And Robin #5 the villain Nobody sets about driving a wedge between Bruce and Damien. Could this lead to a parting of ways for a time while he and his red breasted companions team up? This is just a rumor for now but BC tend to be fairly spot on with these things so my money is on this happening. Updates as and when

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/rorschachsrrants/news/?a=53395&t=COMICS_Is_A_New_DC_Title_Called_THE_ROBINS_On_The_Way