

Reports USA TODAY: The issue also contains a short backup story starring a mysterious figure that sets the stage for a new arc beginning in Issue 7, which catches up with the heroes of the Justice League five years later — both in story and look — in the present day of the New 52 continuity. Geoff Johns promises we'll see more Darkseid down the line. But while the first arc was all about reintroducing him and more importantly setting up the origin of the Justice League and the genesis of superheroes, the second arc starting in issue 7 is all about introducing a new villain, Lee says, as well as bringing in new Leaguers — Green Arrow makes his presence felt in issue 8 — and paying off the teases involving the enigmatic Pandora, a hooded woman who first appeared in the Flashpoint event series. Read more from Johns and Jim Lee

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/GraphicCity/news/?a=55397&t=COMICS_JUSTICE_LEAGUE_6_Preview_DARKSEID_Looking_For_His_Daughter