

Mark Kidwell is the writer for the Image zombie comic "68" which takes place around the same time as Night of the Living Dead and is based in Vietnam as Barbara's boyfriend writes a letter from behind enemy lines. The Jerk was on the scene for an exclusive interview in which Mark Kidwell discusses the future of "68," as well as gives his opinion on whether we could possibly see a "68" and "Walking Dead" crossover. When asked about the possibility of a "Walking Dead" doing some sort of merge Kidwell was quick to point out: I would seriously doubt it because Walking Dead is based modern times, current chronology, were as 68 takes place 68 and is basically the end of the world happening right before 1970. We will be there bringing the Zombie stuff up through the 70's after that maybe the calendars just stop, so you're right
