

Man-Thing has recently been serving as a means of transport for the Thunderbolts in the Jeff Parker penned series. At the moment, he's in some sort of hibernation seemingly preparing for the next stage of his evolution (according to Satanna anyway). Well, it looks as if whatever the latest iteration of the character is, he'll be getting his own series in June's Infernal Man-Thing. Bleeding Cool don't have any further details as of right now, but have a great track record when it comes to comic book related scoops such as this one. Another rumor doing the rounds is that Thunderbolts will soon be coming to an end, although the title will keep Parker as writer with the same numbering and a different title - could this be it?!

Read more: <http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/JoshWildingNewsAndReviews/news/?a=56297>