

A couple of days ago DC reveled their new logo that they had submitted to the patent office. You all turned out in droves to tell CBM that you did not much care for the logo one bit, but maybe these new and improved versions of the logo will change your mind. Bleeding Cool have gotten a hold of some new looks for the logo. The logos breath a bit more life in to the boring grey and white that we saw before with a number of colors and styles including some based off of comics(notice the Watchman one). Another aspect of the new logo will be the role it will play in the touchscreen viewing of DC's material. A small demenstration of how it will work is on display in the photo below. DC excited about the new logo with Senior Vice President of Franchise Management Amit Desai saying, "We didn't want

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/JakeLester/news/?a=53073&t=COMICS_New_DC_Logo_Gets_Some_Color