

The Associated Press report that the long running Marvel series is set to come to an end with issue #544 this September, as a direct result of the events of Schism. A series which will see Cyclops and Wolverine come to blows, tearing apart the X-Men in the process. "Well, as anyone who's watched the movies will know, the traditional axis of the X-Men has been the polarity of Magneto and Xavier. Xavier basically believes in peaceful integration. Magneto doesn't," said current writer Kieron Gillen. "In the last five years or so, the X-Men have been exploring a different angle. A catastrophe reduced the population to a couple of hundred mutants, and no new ones are being born," he said. "This fledgling species was looking at extinction - and the militarized forces of prejudice moved in for the kill." "The X-Men are getting torn apart from within. The events of `Schism' do
