

"She's really in the position of a lot of the new readers to the DC Universe," Mike Johnson, co-writer of the Supergirl series with Michael Green, tells USA Today. "She's new. She doesn't know this universe, and we're right there with her in her head, in her POV, as she discovers this new DCU. In her mind, she was on Krypton yesterday. She's really the only character in this new universe who has that perspective where for her, in her mind, this is a backward world that she suddenly woke up in." Adds Green: "Superman got to grow up here and feel like he was a human and slowly discover that he was different, whereas for her, waking up on Earth is a massive disruption in the life she expected — and wanted — for herself. Now it's a question of having to learn to make a new life here. She has

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/joshw24/news/?a=46655&t=COMICS_USA_Today_Unveils_First_Look_At_iSupergirl_1i_New_Details_Revealed