

Below are some of the top 15 covers from Complex Magazine's attempt to rank the best Fantastic Four covers of all time. Be source to hit the link at the bottom to head over to Complex and view the complete list.

15. FANTASTIC FOUR #92 (1969) This issue of the Fantastic Four takes place towards the back end of Stan Lee and Jack Kirby's record-breaking run on the book. The contents of each issue may have been better than most other books on the market, but the strain of Lee and Kirby's relationship began to show. Stories weren't as memorable and communication between the two wasn't as harmonious as before. Despite the slow demise of the creators' relationship, there's no denying that Kirby was simply killing it with these covers. The image of Ben Grimm's powerful paw ripping down a fight poster may not give much insight into the issue's plot,

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/GraphicCity/news/?a=44517&t=Complex Magazine Ranks The Top emFantastic Fourem Covers Of All Time