

Thanks to The Aquaman Shrine, we have this leaked image of some artwork for an in-development video game that's presumably based on the upcoming Aquaman movie. The image features the movie's logo, as well as some promo art of Jason Momoa's Atlantean King and some of his aquatic pals. We don't have any details on the game just yet, but the pic is credited to Eipix Entertainment, who apparently debuted it at their latest convention. Hopefully we'll find out more on this soon, but for now have a look at the image below and let us know what you think. Aquaman is set to swim into theaters on October 5, 2018, and will also star Amber Heard as Mera and Patrick Wilson as Ocean Master.

Read more: <https://www.comicbookmovie.com/aquaman/concept-art-for-upcoming-aquaman-video-game-features-jason-momoas-king-of-a148003>