

Cable and Domino may just be the two most highly anticipated casting announcements as of right now, and the news that Django Unchained actress Kerry Washington is being eyed for the latter in Deadpool 2 has had fans talking a lot over the past 24 hours or so. Now, Twitter's @BossLogic has come up with his own unique take on the character, and it makes great use of colour to provide a very different, but entirely awesome, version of Domino. The mutant is obviously known for her pale complexion, but should the African American actress join the sequel, it's possible her appearance could be altered. If so, then reversing the colours of her skin and costume would definitely work and this design is undeniably cool. What do you guys think of Washington suiting up like this for Deadpool 2? Let us know your thoughts in the comments section down below. Reworked Domino with the new casting rumours of @kerrywashington wanted to do something different

Read more: https://www.comicbookmovie.com/deadpool/deadpool_2/cool-new-deadpool-2-fan-art-imagines-what-kerry-washington-a148955