

Just a day after theories that Pierce Brosnan will play Cable in Deadpool 2 surfaced, a new piece of fan-art has surfaced (via @Bosslogic) that features the former 007 fully suited up as Nathan Summers. As well as having the right look, Brosnan is also the perfect age and has action movie experience thanks to his time spent playing James Bond, and that's something you have to believe the fourth wall breaking Merc with the Mouth would love to poke fun at here. Whether or not it will actually happen remains to be seen, especially as it's unlikely his casting would have been revealed in such a manner. Would you like to see Brosnan play Cable in Deadpool 2? Do you think this fan-art does the character justice? As always, be sure to let us know your thoughts in the comments section down below.
