

HeyUguys had a chat with the young director of found footage super-hero movie Chronicle, and as well as asking him some revealing questions about that movie, they inquired about the recent report that he was in line to direct a Fantastic Four reboot for Fox. But they also ask him about an X-Men movie. That is a new one for us, perhaps they were just testing the water, but either way Trank doesn't shoot it down..of course neither does he confirm anything! Here is an excerpt from the interview, in which Trank also gives his take on the proposed Akira remake and reveals his favorite superhero.. If there was a US version of Akira, Chronicle would be it — would you make one? Josh Trank: After Zack Snyder's Dawn of the Dead, I stopped judging remakes. Who knows? Will you be doing Fantastic Four or X-Men? Josh Trank: It's a little weird, as I knew

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/roorschachsrrants/news/?a=53487&t=Could_Josh_Trank_Be_In_Line_To_Direct_The_X-MEN_FIRST_CLASS_Sequel