

I haven't not read any of the books, so I wasn't familiar with the term, "Muttation," which in the books is a genetically altered creature created by the Capital. These creatures come in many forms, and were created to do different tasks like spying on other districts, or being a weapon during the games. One such version of the Muttations is a wolf like creature that we did see in the movie, but was missing a significantly creepy element that was in the book: Each of the mutts resembled one of the tributes who had died previously in the Games, had a collar marked with the district number of the tribute it was based off of, and had eyes that looked remarkably human. It became apparent that the dead tributes' DNA was mixed with a form of wolf. This made them look so much like their Tribute that Katniss wondered if they

Read more: <http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/nailbiter111/news/?a=57771>