

Talking to PopcornBiz, DC Comics Co-publisher San Didio has seemingly confirmed rumors that the marriage between Clark Kent and Lois Lane WILL come to an end in the upcoming relaunch. "Let's just say it's being reexamined, because it's something that I think is something that is so valuable to the character's story that you really want to explore all facets of it. Not just as it exists currently." I think what you're going to see is a lot of big changes for Superman. We really went back to the core of the character. And more importantly, we got somebody in Grant Morrison, who's really taking the character and reinventing him so you feel a real contemporary tone, a really contemporary time, but still staying true to the core. I think it's so important for us to make sure Superman stays as relevant today as he did when he first was created back

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/joshw24/news/?a=39610&t=Dan_Didio_Seemingly_Confirms_End_Of_SupermanLois_Lane_Marriage