

Source: TimeOut-London Speaking to TimeOut-London, actor Daniel Craig reflects back on Quantum of Solace and discusses his upcoming roles in Skyfall and The Girl With A Dragon Tattoo. On Rooney Mara being cast as Salander in The Girl With The Dragon Tattoo: Craig: "There were shenanigans going on while she was being cast [about whether she was right: Natalie Portman, Carey Mulligan and Scarlett Johansson were all linked to the role]. David Fincher was adamant and I get that. Just look at the beginning of "The Social Network", she's phenomenal. She's got something about her, but also she's physically perfect. When she puts the hoodie on and the leather jacket, she looks like a 14-year-old boy, she looks sexless. Which is perfect. The other side of it is that when she doesn't have that on, she's really sexy. That combination is absolutely true to the book. Salander's someone who would walk down the street

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/GraphicCity/news/?a=51525&t=Daniel Craig Reflects On QUANTOM OF SOLACE Discusses SKYFALL And THE GIRL WITH THE DRAGON TATTOO