

While Casino Royale was met with almost unanimous praise from fans and critics alike, Quantum of Solace didn't fare quite so well despite being the highest grossing movie of the franchise. Perhaps that's why Daniel Craig is now determined that Skyfall will be the "perfect" film, and in a recent interview with GQ (via MTV) he talked about getting the next instalment just right. "There's a perfect Bond movie out there. And I'm going to find it if it kills me. Which it might. I have to be that way about it. The script that we have at the moment, and this is not just actor hyperbole, I'm genuinely excited about it, " he said. "There's a really good hook. In fact, we now have two or three really good hooks, two might work and that's what you want. That's what we had in Casino." Fans of the Ian Fleming novels will be

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/JoshWildingNewsAndReviews/news/?a=50482&t=Daniel_Craig_Wants_iSkyfalli_To_Be_The_Perfect_James_Bond_Movie