

Last year Fox and the Ryan Reynolds/Tim Miller team released the critically and commercially beloved Deadpool movie. Universally loved by fans and critics, it exceeded all expectations and a sequel wasn't far behind. While that movie is still in preproduction, we have had a whole year to rewatch and continue to enjoy Deadpool's debut film. Between a seemingly never ending marketing team, and Ryan Reynolds himself, fans are constantly getting new media and goodies from the world of Deadpool. Some have complained that the Marvel character is being overused but today we got a rather hilarious piece from Reynolds via Twitter to commemorate the one year anniversary. The traditional gift for the one year anniversary is of course paper... Obviously. What do you think? Still excited for the sequel or are you getting tired of seeing the regenerating degenerate every time you go online?

Read more: <https://www.comicbookmovie.com/deadpool/deadpool-celebrates-one-year-anniversary-with-toilet-paper-a148886>