

Asked by a fan on Twitter what sort of credit he will get for his work on Marvel's The Avengers (as expected, it's a story credit due to the fact that director Joss Whedon chose to rewrite the entire screenplay from scratch) Zak Penn has dropped a very intriguing hint about an upcoming project he may soon start work on. Many thanks to CBM's own @MarkJulianCBM for the heads up. "@vidi_well: @zakpenn nice! thanks. are you ever gonna do another?" yes, eventually. Might do something very strange later this year— Zak Penn (@zakpenn) April 8, 2012 Penn is best know to comic book fans for writing Elektra, X-Men: The Last Stand and The Incredible Hulk. Other writing credits include Inspector Gadget and Behind Enemy Lines. In case you can't quite work it out, Penn was asked whether he would work on another superhero movie and replied that he, "might do something very strange." This

Read more: <http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/JoshWildingNewsAndReviews/news/?a=57593>