

While the source raises some questions about the validity of the information, someone over at the SHH Boards has posted some detailed descriptions of Man Of Steel Concept art that was shown at a WB Tradeshow. I ran this through my source that works at WB and they told me the description is legit. The show started off with the Jor-El trailer that has been released in theaters. After that the concept art was shown that seems to confirm information I brought to you earlier, that Man Of Steel will showcase a war torn Krypton. The art was drawn by James Acheson who worked on Daredevil and Sam Raimi's Spider-Man as well as Michael Wilkinson who worked on 300 and Watchman. Check out the detailed description below, and final WARNING contains spoilers. - Henry Cavill in Supes suit full body, and then a half body shot of cavill using the monochromatic suit

Read more: <http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/JakeLester/news/?a=67144>