

Robert Orci and Jon Favreau screened some new footage from their Comic book adaptation movie which will be released on July, 29 later this year. They screened about 9 or 10 minutes of footage from the film, beginning with Craig's arrival in the old west, the people he encounters, the introduction of Harrison Ford's character, the destruction of local cows, the big set piece 30 minutes in where the aliens invade the small western town, Craig's character uses his futuristic looking arm weaponry to shoot an alien spacecraft down in the town's center, and the alien creature destroys some humans in a small shop (blood hits the windows) before making his getaway. We were then presented with a montage of footage from the remainder of the film, showcasing the chase through the western landscapes, fights with alien creatures in the desert like locations, Craig jumping on top of one of the
