

Spidey and Daredevil has a great history of team-ups. My personal favorite would be their team-up from the 90's show. That was my first ever DVD from that series, and my first glimpse of Daredevil. This comic has been hyped for a bit, Spidey and DD haven't teamed-up in awhile, so this was greatly welcomed. I haven't been too fond of the series lately, but even I was excited at the thought of these two teaming up. So I'm sad to say that this comic was one of the worst issues I've read in years. I'm not even going to mention the story, about how Spidey thinks Black Cat is not guilty of an incident and goes to Daredevil for help. One thing I hate in comics is when Part One takes place in one series, and then Part Two takes place in another one, forcing the reader to buy an issue

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/Destroyer14/news/?a=52788&t=Destroyer14s_review_of_AMAZING_SPIDER-MAN_677