

While everyone's aware, principal photography for Christopher Nolan's third and final 'Batman' installment, The Dark Knight Rises, is well underway in the U.K.. And with filming currently taking place at Wollaton Hall, which'll serve as the new Wayne Manor, a few vague reports from the set have been revealed, via Twitter. But first, a casting call was revealed yesterday calling for extras for a supposed "Gotham" football game, though further details were unsurprisingly unknown. However, thanks to On Location Vacation and Be In A Movie, more details regarding that shoot have been revealed as well. On August 6, The Dark Knight Rises will be filming a scene in Pittsburgh involving a football game between the Gotham Rogues and the Rapid City Monuments and they need fans to cheer on these teams for the shot! Participants will get to be a part of the action which will include stunts, explosions and special

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/MarvelFreshman/news/?a=40706&:t=Details\_Involving\_Wollaton\_Hall\_A\_Football\_Game\_For\_The\_Dark\_Knight\_Rises\_Shoot