

Paul Franklin has worked with director Christopher Nolan on all three Batman movies, and took to Twitter earlier today to address fan questions in regards to the highly anticipated release of the six minute The Dark Knight Rises prologue with Mission Impossible: Ghost Protocol next month. Confirming previous reports that it will only be available in 70MM IMAX theaters, he also revealed that the first full theatrical trailer will indeed be released this Christmas. Below are a selection of his Tweets, where Franklin also discusses the release of the full movie next July. The Dark Knight Rises IMAX prologue will be released on Dec 21 with M:I4, but only in theatres with a proper film projector - no digital! So make sure it's a proper 70mm projection otherwise you'll be disappointed! However, the full movie will be shown in IMAX digital theatres, so it's not all just for the lucky few in London. No -

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/JoshWildingNewsAndReviews/news/?a=50368&t=Details_On_The_Release_Of_The_Dark_Knight_Rises_Prologue_New_Trailer_Confirmed_For_This_Christmas