

I might as well tell you now that the answer to the above question is a resounding yes. Kapow! may have been my first comic book convention, but I can state for a fact that there's never been anything else in the UK that has managed to bring the excitement and star power of SDCC to these shores. Yes, there are plenty of other established movie and comic conventions, but with schedules often full of nobodies and has-been's, it's hard to really want to go to them unless you're a fan of someone or something in particular. That is by no means a dig at the current batch of Cons here, but can any of you who have attended them tell me you saw the likes of Mark Millar, John Romita Jr, Chris Hemsworth, Tom Hiddleston and new footage from the likes of Green Lantern and Thor? Not to mention the

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/joshw24/news/?a=35393&t=Did\_Kapow\_Comic\_Con\_Really\_Bring\_The\_SDCC\_Experience\_To\_The\_UK