

We've already seen photos of the Red Ranger's Tyrannosaurus Dinozord and the fully-assembled Megazord from Lionsgate's upcoming Power Rangers movie and now, with the impending release of the interactive figure, we have fresh photos of the four Dinozords that will be piloted by the Pink, Blue, Yellow, and Black Rangers. While the other four Dinozords are still the well-known Pterodactyl, Mastodon, Sabre-Toothed Tiger, and Triceratops, they are sporting considerably different designs when compared to the original ones from the Mighty Morphin series. The toys also seem to be a relatively small departure from what we've seen in the character posters that were released a few weeks back as they've been fairly simplified and are lacking some serious color. This alteration more likely than not means the actual movie zords will look somewhat different on-screen when they're finally revealed at some point in the not-so-distant future. This current movie Megazord, which stands at a very tall 21 inches, is available to pre-order at Toys 'R'

Read more: <https://www.comicbookmovie.com/action/dinosaurs-revealed-in-latest-photos-of-the-upcoming-power-rangers-movie-a146807>