

Source: THR According to THR Mark Millar is sticking close to his UK buddies when it comes to selecting his next movie project. While many fans are eagerly waiting to hear some news from FOX about an X-Men:First Class sequel, Millar is reportedly looking to assume writing duties for Mark Millar's The Secret Service along with Jane Goldman (pictured above). Millar's new comic isn't even out yet but it boasts an impressive array of talent including Millar, Vaughn and artist Dave Gibbons (co-creator of The Watchmen). Millar is currently auctioning the opportunity to name the villain similar to what he did for the protagonist of Kick-Ass. Vaughn also holds the movie rights to Superior but sources tell THR that Vaughn will only supervise scriptwriting on that project. No word yet on whether he will direct either project. THR also provides a bit of theory as to why we haven't

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/GraphicCity/news/?a=48615&t=Director_Matthew_Vaughn_To_Pen_Script_For_Mark_Millars_emThe_Secret_Serviceem