

Obviously last year you were famously wrapped up in the "Donald Glover for Spider-Man" campaign, and now we've got a black Spider-Man in one version of continuity that some say looks a little bit like you. Have you been speaking to Marvel about anything that we should know about? (laughs) Look I think for a long time people know that I have an iron grip over there, I'm very strong at the Marvel Comics (laughs) people really respect me over there. No, [comic book writer Brian Bendis] got the idea from seeing a Community episode actually, cause I was in like Spider-Man pajamas, which I thought was pretty great. It's funny, people say he looks like me, I don't see it that much, but I know he was influenced by me. I can't wait to have grandkids and be like, "Yup, that's me." It's really cool. The nerd respect I've gotten is
