

Before you take a look at the wonderful Dredd concept art below I really wanted to reach out to the Comic Book Movie community. I want to urge you to go and see this movie, and to tell your friends that they too should go and see this movie. Presently the film is not fairing well at the box office, and to me that is bizarre. We finally have an R-rated movie based on a beloved comic book, that is praised by critics, yet it's suffering at the box office? If you want Hollywood to believe that people actually want to see films of this nature, you have to get off your butts see it. Spread the word, it's vital! If you don't, then you can expect more kid friendly versions of your favorite comic books. I still cringe when I see "Fantastic Four" and the Dalmatian on the firetruck covers
