

Deadline reports that Dwight Yoakam - a successful country music singer and actor, previously seen in Dirty Girl and Bloodworth - has dropped out of Walt Disney's Lone Ranger production, set to begin production this month. Originally set to play one of the villains, insiders say that Yoakam dropped out because of a scheduling conflict. The film stars Johnny Depp and Armie Hammer, and is set to hit theaters May 31st, 2013. In other casting news, Deadline also reports that Nonso Anozie - previously seen in The Grey and Conan The Barbarian - will play Sergeant Dap in the film adaptation of Orson Scott Card's best-selling novel Ender's Game, also beginning production this month. The plot revolves around "brilliant young strategist Ender Wiggins (Asa Butterfield), who is drafted by the International Fleet to save the human race." In addition, Joyful Noise's Stevie Ray Dallimore and Twilight Saga: Breaking Dawn Part 2's

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/BatFreak/news/?a=54908&t=Dwight_Yoakam_Drops_Out_Of_THE_LONE_RANGER_Nonso_Anozie_Joins_ENDERS_GAME