

According to The One Ring, Peter Jackson's much anticipated film The Hobbit: An Unexpected Journey, will have its world premiere in late November of 2012 in Wellington, New Zealand (which was the same place where the last Lord Of The Rings film, Return Of The King, had its world premiere). New Zealand news site 3 News has a video showing Jackson's announcing the details on the world premiere with NZ Prime Minister John Key, but since there isn't any embed code for right now, click here to watch the eleven minute video. The Hobbit: An Unexpected Journey is set to premiere in Wellington in late November 2012, director Sir Peter Jackson and Prime Minister John Key announced today at the Hobbiton set in Waikato. Wellington previously hosted the world premiere of the final Lord of the Rings movie, Return of the King, in December 2003. The Hobbit: An Unexpected Journey hits theaters

Read more: [http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/BatFreak/news/?a=49032&t=Early
Details For The World Premiere Of The Hobbit An Unexpected Journey](http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/BatFreak/news/?a=49032&t=Early_Details_For_The_World_Premiere_Of_The_Hobbit_An_Unexpected_Journey)