

When I woke up today, I expected to hear about a summer blockbuster that pleased many fans around the world. I was expecting to see people happy and the reactions of happy, mid-night attenders to appear online for everyone to see. I expected a day that I would always remember for good reasons. However, like many of you, I was shocked and horrified at the tragedy that occurred today. I didn't wake up to happiness, or fans cheering, or people celebrating another day or a special premier day. No, I woke up to hear about a summer blockbuster premier, where fans of all ages were murdered in cold blood. I woke up to see people on the news crying and traumatized from the events of a sick act of what can only be described as evil. I didn't wake up to see as many mid-night reactions because more than one dozen of

Read more: <http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/HalJordanReviewsandEditorials/news/?a=64203>