

The Green Lantern movie; just talking about it gets some of us fanboys (and girls) in such a rage that we can barely see straight. The movie had its flaws, that much is for certain, but what I also saw in the film was potential. Warner Brothers is shifting in to overdrive trying to get a Justice League movie off the ground, and there have been some rumblings that they are thinking about rebooting Green Lantern since it performed so poorly. To me this is the wrong choice for WB/DC. Continue reading for a few of my thoughts on why they should stick with the Green Lantern they have already established as opposed to rebooting the franchise altogether. Ryan Reynolds wasn't a bad Hal Jordan. I have seen people on both sides of the fence about this, but in my honest opinion Ryan Reynolds was not a bad choice for the role of

Read more: <http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/JakeLester/news/?a=62464>