

Guilty Pleasures, the films that you enjoy or love even when you know they are terrible or have been critically panned by audiences and critics alike. We all have at least one of them. A film we're embarrassed to tell our friends about liking. I'm going to list my four biggest guilty pleasures in film. Of, course, be sure to list your own in the comments area below, and of course be nice, even if somebody says they like Batman and Robin, be respectful. Any, without further adew, check out my list below. The Room (2003) I decided to put this as the first on my list because obviously, it's not a comic book movie, it's "apparently" a black comedy according to the trailers for the film though, so take that for all it's worth. This is a film where absolutley everything goes wrong; the writing, the acting, the direction, everything goes wrong. Not
