

As most of you now, I used to have a strong disliking for Nolan and his batman movies. I kinda grew up though and realized they are great movies, though not perfect, and am eagerly anticipating a certain Dark Knight's Rise. On the other hand, I did grow up with Marvel and Spiderman and I think Avengers will be one of the best movies of all time. But, after seeing a recent article, I have come to a stunning revelation: we are why nerds get picked on. We, the very people who claim to be so smart, are fighting and splitting ourselves apart. For Nolanites: Yes, The Dark Knight was amazing. Yes, it provided an accurate yet realistic portrayal of all it's characters. But was it perfect? No. Does its greatness slate Rises for the same thing? No. It looks great. Totally. Great cast, great filmography, and Bane's Gotham in ashes line is

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/Altairsarmor/news/?a=52074&t=EDITORIAL_Why_we_are_all_being_ridiculous