

Speaking to New York Magazine, actress Emily Blunt briefly responded to a question about her decision to turn down roles in both Iron Man 2 and Captain America: The First Avenger: NYM: At one point, you were up for parts in Iron Man 2 and Captain America, but you passed. Would you ever want to do a superhero movie? EMILY BLUNT: "Usually the female parts in a superhero film feel thankless: She's the pill girlfriend while the guys are whizzing around saving the world. I didn't do the other ones because the part wasn't very good or the timing wasn't right, but I'm open to any kind of genre if the part is great and fun and different and a challenge in some way. I would love to do a comic-book movie or a science-fiction film that would scare the bejesus out of me. Maybe I need to be James Bond! I just

Read more: <http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/GraphicCity/news/?a=55799>