

Emma Stone, who will play Gwen Stacy opposite Andrew Garfield as Peter Parker in Marc Webb's The Amazing Spider-Man, speaks about her experiences of being part of such a big special effects driven movie for the first time to Digital Spy.. "Just because the scale is so large, doing Spider-Man is more daunting than I realized in the beginning," Stone said. "I've tried not to think about it too much - especially while we were shooting - but when you're sitting on these giant blue screens with all these rigs, it's the opposite of an environment like [former film] Superbad. It's odd, but it's very exciting." Stone is also well aware of Spidey's re-bid fanbase and acknowledges their passion and her own desire to ensure they are not let down.. "Spider-Man has this built-in fan base, where people already know the story and are going in with their own opinions and expectations, so you're

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/roorschachsran/s/news/?a=41285&t=Emma Stone talks About Working On iThe Amazing Spider-Mani